Manuscript Subm

If you have previously signed in to NIHMS, it is important that you continue to use the same account going forward in order to access your submissions. If you sign in and do not see a submission that you previously accessed, it is likely the case that you have signed in using a different account. If you are not sure which sign-in route you last used, you can request an e-mail reminder or contact the Help Desk for additional assistance.

You have selected the My NCBI login route to access NIHMS.

Which sign-in method should I use?

- If you previously logged in to NIHMS through a third-party route, such as Google, NIH, or eRA Commons, please click the appropriate button to log in.
- If you have previously registered for a My NCBI account directly with My NCBI, please click the appropriate button to log in.

Sign in to My NCBI via a third party by clicking on the appropriate button and entering your credentials. You can find a list of additional third party and institutional portals by clicking on this link (skip to Slide 4).

New to the NIHMS and My NCBI?

If you are new to NIHMS and My NCBI and are either unable or do not wish to use a third-party login, please register for an NCBI account by clicking on "Register for an NCBI account." Once you have created your new account, you will be directed to the NIHMS system, where you will be asked to re-enter your name and contact information.

Click here if you have never signed in before and need to register a new account. are not sure by what account, you may request an e-mail reminder via the NIHMS homepage. (Creating multiple accounts in NIHMS can inhibit access to your submissions.)

If you are registering for a new account, be advised that the NCBI and NIHMS systems are separate, so your contact information will need to be maintained in each system.

The "Forgot NCBI username or password?" link applies only to direct My NCBI accounts. You will need to inquire with the third party's help desk for assistance if you forgot your third-party login credentials.

If you have questions about the above login instructions, please do not attempt to login but rather contact the NIHMS Help Desk for assistance.
